Introduction

People who enjoy their jobs are happier, more productive and more successful than others. Making the right career choice is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. As a result, it is crucial to have all of the necessary information for you to make an informed decision. The "20/20 Career" report allows you to meet these goals by telling you how well your profile is suited to various existing professions. We suggest you take a structured approach in order to make good use of this information.

1. [ Know Yourself Better ]

Better understand your areas of interest, your abilities and your personal qualities. What are your strengths and your limitations? The better you know yourself, the better choices you will make. Carefully review the results presented in the different sections of the report. This will help you to see where you stand in relation to a norm based on a group of several thousand people.

2. [ Look at Your Options ]

Identify jobs that fit your personal qualities. What are the related tasks and duties? What is the working environment for people with those jobs? What are the minimum requirements in terms of experience and education? How interested are you in those jobs and how much effort should you put into getting them? Sections 2 and 3 of this report present, in order of preference, the professions that are the best match for your areas of interest. The NOC codes associated with each of the jobs listed refer to the Canadian National Occupational Classification. You can search for the NOC code on the Government of Canada website to find a wealth of information about the jobs you are interested in. Read through the "job factsheets" by clicking on the corresponding hyperlinks. Familiarize yourself with the requisite core competencies and activities, as well as the necessary conditions for getting hired and doing the work. This information will help you to identify the professions that inspire you the most.

3. [ Prepare an Action Plan ]

Identify the steps you need to take in order to attain your career goals you have set for yourself. Are there any differentials in terms of your education and experience? Do you need to improve some of your competencies? How do your strengths help you to stand out? What concrete steps could you take immediately (network of contacts, site visits, etc.)?

4. [ Identify Jobs That Match Your Areas of Interest ]

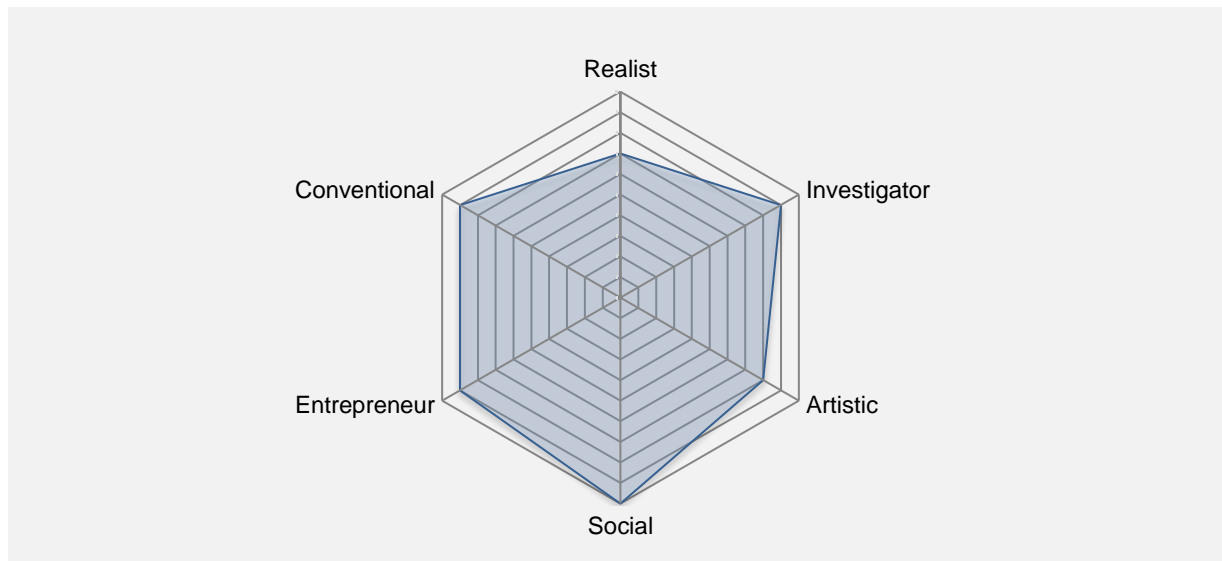

Based on the job banks available online, identify positions that match your professional areas of interests, your abilities and your personal qualities.

Section C - Interests and Conditions for Access to Employment

20/20 Career identifies your interest in different fields of work. The table below lists several of those fields, rated in terms of how much you would enjoy working in them. Additionally, in view of your areas of interest, your abilities, your personality and your learning style, you may find accessing these types of jobs to be easier or more difficult. The table is divided into four parts, showing your level of interest and the prevalence of winning conditions. Note that data regarding winning conditions is provided for informational purposes only and that it is entirely possible to achieve established career goals despite an initial outlook that is less than encouraging.

Section D - Preferred Work Environment

Regardless of career choice, everyone wants to work in an environment that meets their needs. These preferences relate to the type of work performed, the nature of the organization, the stress level, and a number of other decisive factors that can affect job satisfaction and engagement. This section presents your preferences in relation to several aspects that can have an impact on the work environment.

Section E - Your Strengths - Your Personal Style

We each have our own personal style that can help us fit in the workplace. In some cases, that style may be a great fit, while in others it may pose a challenge. As a result, it is important to position ourselves properly before embarking on a career development process. A job that allows us to use our preferred approaches will be a better fit and more satisfying. This section describes your personal style and gives some suggestions about it.

1. [ Extroversion ]

5,5 / 10

You display a moderate level of extroversion. You will easily adapt to a career in which you lead people and persuade them to do things. You will also tend to be tactful and diplomatic and will avoid becoming emotional in your interactions.

2. [ Agreeableness ]

8,5 / 10

Your level of agreeableness is above average, so you will tend to choose a career in which you can help people and be empathetic. You prefer interacting with a team and having social relationships with your co-workers.

3. [ Conscientiousness ]

7,6 / 10

Your level of conscientiousness is about average. You show great attention to detail, work is very important to you, and you consider following the set rules to be essential. However, you are not always very organized.

4. [ Emotional Stability ]

7,0 / 10

Section F - Your Strengths - Your Core Abilities

Achieving our career goals depends on our interests and our abilities. Therefore, it is important to assess our chances of success before embarking on a career development process. The following overview summarizes your assessment of your abilities. Based on this, we can draw some conclusions that should be considered when making your career choices or enrolling in a course of study or training program.

1. [ Administrative Abilities ]

6,0 / 10

According to your self-assessment, your administrative abilities are average. You are relatively organized and meticulous, although you occasionally make mistakes when checking, copying or filing documents.

2. [ Mechanical Abilities ]

4,0 / 10

Your assessment of your mechanical abilities indicates that you lack skill in this area and that you can only perform minor maintenance on a mechanical system. You have a limited understanding of how machines and mechanical parts work.

3. [ Visuomotor Abilities ]

8,0 / 10

You consider your reflexes to be slightly better than those of most people and indicate that you can easily coordinate your movements, even when playing a sport or engaging in intense physical activity.

4. [ Verbal Abilities ]

8,0 / 10

In your opinion, your verbal abilities are slightly above average. You express yourself very easily, both orally and in writing. You are able to write in-depth texts on a wide variety of subjects. You have no trouble adapting your speech to your audience.
